Hawaii Governor Shoots Down Californian's Welfare Plan

HONOLULU (AP) — A Los Angeles man who asked the state of Hawaii to pay his way to the islands so he could go on welfare has received an emphatic "no," Gov. John A. Burns says.

Burns said Friday the man, who was not identified, wrote, "I have been told that one may receive aid immediately. If this be the case, please forward an advance on my first welfare check for air fare."

The man also expressed interest in moving into public housing on the beach.

The state cannot advance welfare funds for air fare, Burns replied. He told the man the state already has 4,000 applicants waiting for public housing, which is all far from the beach. Hawaii also has a high cost of living, Burns added.

"Frankly, I cannot recommend that you move to Hawaii at this time," Burns said.

Daley Loses His Convention Seat!

Committee Okays Rival Delegation

Move Could Widen Democratic Split

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley, boss of the biggest Democratic organization in the country, has been shorn of his convention seat in a move that left the party teetering on the edge of discord.

The convention's Credentials Committee, firmly controlled by supporters of Sen. George McGovern, voted 71 to 61 Friday night to deny seats to Daley and 58 other uncommitted Illinois delegates.

The committee voted instead to seat a rival slate of 41 delegates pledged to McGovern and another 18 leaning toward him.

The vote was the second explosive challenge decided by the committee, triggering extreme emotional responses and setting the stage for a discordant convention floor fight. But, after the Daley vote, a leader of the insurgents called for a healing compromise.

McGovern also picked up eight convention votes in another successful challenge involving downstate Illinois delegates and so gained back at least 49 of the delegates he lost Thursday when the Credentials Committee outlawed California's winner-take-all primary, stripping him of more than half its 271 delegates.

All of the committee's actions are subject to final approval by the national convention, which opens in Miami Beach July 10, and both the California and Illinois challenges are expected to be rethought there. The Daley delegation is also planning a court fight to overturn the committee ruling.

In Chicago, Daley said the action is "regrettable and a great disservice to the Democratic party."

"This action by the Creden-

Well-Oiled Hijack Plan Turns Sour

Alleged Accomplice Held On Piracy Charges

DETROIT (AP) — An unemployed house painter and a high school dropout are in jail on air piracy charges in what the FBI said was a carefully planned skyjacking that turned into a comedy of errors.

Neil Welch, special agent in charge of the Detroit FBI office said Friday that last week's $502,000 hijacking of a Tulsa-bound 727 jet, allegedly plotted by Martin McNally, 28, of Wyandotte, Mich., and John Pellikowsky, 31, of Ecorse, Mich., was "well planned."

But the skyjacking didn't follow the script and the hijacker managed to be identified by two FBI agents who boarded the plane, lost his pants, sub-machine gun and the $502,000 he extorted from American Airlines and also left the ransom note with his fingerprints on it on the plane.

The skyjacker also wound up in Peru, Ind., instead of Monroe, Mich., where the FBI said he had intended to land. The FBI said it was led to McNally by Detroit police who claimed an informant had told them about the plan, as well as by the fingerprints.

Then, after McNally, an unemployed service-station attendant and the high school dropout of the pair, was arrested Wednesday night, Pellikowsky went to the FBI and tried to convince them he had unwittingly driven McNally back to Detroit. He ended up under arrest himself, charged with aiding and abetting an air

Hazen D. Harner, Veteran Berrien Official, Is Dead

Hazen D. Harner, an elected public official in township, school district and Berrien county government most of the years since 1931, died at 6:45 a.m. today in Watervliet

Community hospital. He was 73.

He had been ill the past several months. His home was on Harner road in Pipestone township.

Death came just six months before he was to complete his announced final term of office, as county drain commissioner. He had served as drain commissioner of Berrien county the past 13 1/2 years, being elected to that post first in 1959.

A successful farmer in private life, he first served in public office as Pipestone township treasurer in 1931-33; then as township clerk from 1942-46, and as supervisor of his township from 1947 to 1959. In the interim between his terms as township treasurer and clerk, he served in the elected office of a member of the Collins school board. His 19 years on the school board overlapped some of his service as a township officer. A lifelong Republican, Mr. Harner was given the public endorsement of the Democratic party in his election for supervisor. During his years as county

Michigan Joins Six Other States In Revenue Scheme

Lottery Bill Goes To Milliken

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan has just joined six other states in giving its citizens a chance to get rich quick.

Acting only six weeks after voters lifted a 137-year-old constitutional ban, the legislature Friday adopted a compromise bill establishing a public lottery.

The independent controlling agency, given a two-year life-span, will be run by an appointed commissioner with the power to determine the price of tickets, the amount of prizes and the frequency of drawings.

The legislature, acting in the final hours before a two-month summer adjournment, budgeted $20 million as expected income from the lottery in the next fiscal year.

The House adopted the idea 80-13, following the Senate's 28-5 approval Thursday of a conference report settling differences between the chambers.

Buying a ticket will be as convenient as going to the bank or the corner drugstore. The bill provides for sales to be made in a wide range of business establishments.

Winning will be exempt from all state and local taxes, but the federal bite will be big. The Internal Revenue Service says a married man making $10,000 a year would have to pay $15,420 on a $50,000 prize and $33,870 on a $100,000 winning. The figures are based on averaging the income over a four-year period.

The $35,000-a-year commissioner will be appointed by Gov. William Milliken after he signs the bill. It will take immediate effect. Legislative lottery leaders indicated it would be realistic to expect the first drawing about Dec. 1.

Lotteries already are being run in New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

The bill was approved by comfortable margins after weeks of haggling over such questions as whether one commissioner or three should run the lottery and whether it should be placed under an existing state agency.

The lottery bureau will have $2.5 million in startup funds. The person Milliken designates to run the show will have authority to appoint four deputies.

Some 45 per cent of the lottery income is to be returned in prizes, with the state taking the rest after expenses.

Adding Machine Logic In Death Penalty Decision

Unlike many state supreme courts, particularly Michigan's, whose justices delight in tossing mental barbs at one another in separately written opinions, the U.S. Supreme Court normally delivers reasonably crisp decisions which the lawyers and lesser tribunals find to be clearly cut paths to a given point in the law.

Dissents are frequent and often heatedly stated, but the legal profession has no difficulty in following the ruling whether it be a 5-4 or an 8-1.

Thursday the Court delivered a 5-4 decision on three death sentence appeals from Georgia and Texas. One Georgia case involved the death penalty for murder committed during a burglary. The second and also the one from Texas were sentences for rape.

The nine justices each wrote a separate opinion which sort out in this fashion.

The four dissenters, all Nixon appointees, voted to sustain the sentences.

Two Justices said the death penalty flouts today's conception of what the Constitution's 8th Amendment means when it bans inflicting "cruel and unusual punishments."

Another Justice said the discretionary sentencing common to conviction for capital crimes in many states allows the death penalty to be parcelled out in a discriminatory manner.

Two other Justices followed a converging approach by holding that under present legal guidelines the death penalty is or can be "wantonly and freakishly imposed."

Though this wavering 2-1-2 combination equals five and since five exceeds four, the opinion saves the necks of the three defendants from Georgia and Texas and probably will ring the bell for most of nearly 600 other convicts held in state prisons pending death sentence stays of execution.

The assumption is that they will serve a life term in those states where optional sentencing is used.

The decision, however, is not an outright ban against the death penalty.

Three of the five-man majority are in an oblique alignment with the four-man minority. If the penalty for a certain crime, for example, first degree murder, is death and the sentencing court has no option, presumably an appeal on that type of sentence would be upheld by a 7-2 verdict.

Rhode Island has such a law on its books. Death is mandatory for a life termer committing murder during his incarceration.

Why nine legal scholars crisscrossed their footsteps to reach Thursday's double meaning result reflects America's ambivalence on law enforcement.

The 8th Amendment was adopted in an age of crystallized views on crime and punishment. Public whipping a wife beater and hanging a murderer were considered perfectly in order. However, cutting off a pickpocket's hand was deemed overly severe.

This was the sharply defined focus of what late 18th century Americans regarded as proper punishment as opposed to the 8th Amendment's "cruel and unusual" interdiction.

It might also be remembered that in the Republic's formative years the prevailing attitude was that of once a crook always a crook. Therefore, punishment should be swift and severe to meet challenge to the established order of things.

Public opinion in succeeding generations has deviated from that straight and narrow corridor, and at the moment, it is hard to tell what road we are travelling.

Inherently, we suspect, most people shy from the death penalty as a mortal usurpation of a Divine prerogative.

At the same time, everyone except the crooks and the ultra liberals are fed up to the teeth with having to barricade the house at night, women fearing to walk alone in plain daylight, and the tender loving care decisions from overly solicitous judges.

The Court's ruling, that is, the nine separate opinions mirrors this uncertain state of mind.

Two in the five-man majority believe in tender loving care.

The minority state the upsurging desire for law and order.

The other three feel a compromise is workable.

Although a court's posture should be one of leadership, there are periods when it believes a trial balloon should be sent up to survey the landscape. A decision too far removed from the public's impression of how things should be done can invalidate a court's effectiveness. The Prohibition laws are the classic example of what can happen to law enforcement when public support is missing.

Without saying it in so many words, most of the Justices are asking for an opinion poll on the death penalty vs. law and order.

Independence Day

On July 4 will be celebrated an event which will be remembered for all time by those who believe in America.

The concept of independence and liberty grew mightily after a little band of American patriots gathered 195 years ago to issue a ringing declaration of freedom from the asserted rights of kings to lord it over every individual under their sway.

This new country breathed the air of freedom, but the kings reached across the wide waters in an attempt to impose the same tyrannical rule they exercised on continents weary with age-old despotism. The founding fathers, having fled despotism, were determined it should not rule them here.

So they cast loose, with many misgivings, and set the example that succeeding generations in many parts of the world have sought to follow.

Richard Henry Lee of Virginia was the first to voice the desire of the Thirteen Colonies for an Independent State. On June 7, 1776, his resolution which was read to the delegates in Congress stated that: "These colonies were and ought to be free and independent."

Later, a committee consisting of Jefferson, Franklin, John Adams, Roger Sherman and Robert L. Livingston was appointed to draw up a formal declaration. The actual wording of the famous document was left to Jefferson.

On July 4, 1776, the resolution was laid before Congress, then sitting in Philadelphia, and was adopted with few changes.

To perpetuate and forever establish to the world the doctrine that the right to rule is "derived from the consent of the governed," these noble men mutually pledged to each other, "their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor."

Today, in the cradle of human freedom which once staked everything to rid itself of tyrants, many are willing to accept the easy solutions of a government that feeds on expanding authority until it becomes all powerful. Will this land slip back into the harness of dependence after its heady adventure with independence? If so, it will be a confession that man cannot be understood. He must bow down.

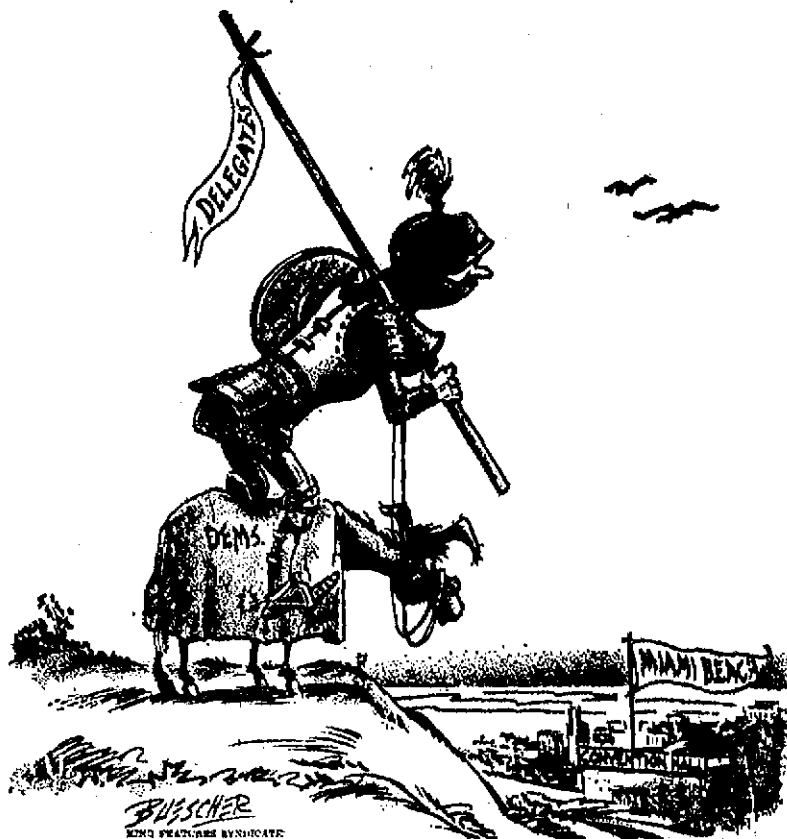

Today the false propaganda of the forces of tyranny is often believed, while the truth, diluted by cynicism, weariness and unbelief, is scorned in wide areas of the world. Will there be a rebirth of the spirit of freedom before it is too late? That is mankind's only hope.

ASKS LOWER SPEED LIMIT Editor,

Two weeks ago on Tuesday, June 13, four-year-old Molly Flynn was killed by a car on US-33 at Lake Michigan Beach. The issue that has now been brought out is the speed limit in this particular area. The present speed on US-33 in this area is 55 mph. During the summer the beach becomes very populated with many visitors. Along US-33 are many beaches in which a great deal of people walk to. With about 4,400 people at the Lake Michigan Beach area in the summer, the speed is too high for the area.

The parents of Molly are now circulating petitions to seek the lowering of the speed limit to at least 45 mph. The area it would cover would be to Hager Shore Road at the north end of the beach, south to Fikes Road. In order for them to get the county to lower the speed limit, they will need everyone's help from the area. To get a petition, (if you wish to help), or to sign one, contact Bob and Sharon Flynn, Route 2, Central Avenue, Lake Michigan Beach. Nothing can be done about Molly's tragedy but maybe they can save someone else the grief the Flynn's have had. I am sure that they will appreciate everyone's cooperation very much.

SOCIAL WORKERS OPPOSE STATE FORM Editor,

(This is a copy of a letter sent to Dr. E. Gordon Yudashkin, director of the Michigan Department of Mental Health, Lansing).

It has come to our attention that the Department of Mental Health is attempting to install a new system of information retrieval regarding patients. A part of this procedure is to fill out DMH Form number 1810 on every patient with an open status on July 1, 1972, in all PA 54 agencies.

We certainly concur with your attempts to retrieve information on patients under PA 54 as a basis of mental health accountability; however, we oppose the form in its current state.

Several issues are raised in our minds around the following:

First, we object to the title which designates all patients as "mentally ill." Many of them are, but many are troubled by family and personal problems and could not be designated as mentally ill.

Second, we believe that "identifying" information such as name, address, social security number, phone

Rapid City In Good Shape, Mayor Reports

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Just three weeks after a June 9 flood claimed more than 230 lives in Rapid City and the surrounding Black Hills area, the city is in "remarkably good shape," says Mayor Donald Barnett.

Much of the debris has been hauled away and the streets are clear, said Barnett, and the main problem remaining is finding housing for persons who lost their homes to the water.

"We've located housing for more than 200 families," Barnett said, "but that still leaves nearly 1,000 more to find shelter for. They're living in temporary homes, with friends."

Connally-Kissinger

Collision Course?

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If John Connally should become secretary of State in the next Nixon administration, expect major changes at State and White House.

In the short time he was at Treasury, Connally established himself as a major rival of Dr. Henry Kissinger, President Nixon's security and foreign affairs adviser. The two men bumped, politely and gentlemanly to be sure. But they bumped firmly all the same.

The issue was the position of the dollar, foreign exchange rates and the monetary exchange system that might replace gold — resulting from the Nixon August, 1971, bombshell announcement on the dollar. Connally, as secretary of the Treasury, believed this dollar policy was his province, under the President. Kissinger believed that it was his to a considerable degree, since it involved foreign policy.

Both Kissinger and Connally are able, forceful, determined men. Both command a heavy degree of loyalty from their staffs. Both come out swinging. The result was inevitable.

The men backing Connally for secretary of state see a department expanded to far wider interests and powers than that agency had commanded in the past two decades.

For one, foreign economic policy would be a major function of State. What is now done at the Treasury, these men say, should be transferred.

The Department of State has, of course, long been interested in foreign economic policy. It has a bureau of economic af-airs, headed by an assistant secretary. Though sometimes led by very able men, that bureau has been historically heavily restricted in what it was given to do. Other government agencies — Treasury, Commerce, the Agency for International Development (under the State Department but not always working completely in harness) and a plethora of other bodies seem to have gone their separate ways. Since the advent of Robert S. McNamara as head of the World Bank, the American input to the bank's policies has not always jibed completely with other government actions.

As a result of all this, more often than not the United States has had no strong, well-thought-out, coordinated foreign economic policy framework or objective. At least none that were clear to all American agencies in the field and to foreign governments with which we have strong economic ties.

Some men would go further and say the United States has had no foreign economic policy.

What makes the situation serious is the continuing economic crisis here and in many countries, abroad which demonstrates how closely U.S. and world prosperity are tied with national and international economic policies.

Promulgating an economic posture and negotiating it abroad can become the most significant area of American foreign policy with regard to our friends and allies around the world.

McGovern Style Democracy Myth

It is widely believed that the reforms instituted by the McGovern commission, set up four years ago by the Democratic National Convention, opened up the nominating process, made it more democratic by allowing wide participation, and that now McGovern himself is the beneficiary.

This is a myth. Sen. McGovern has done fairly well in the primary elections, though his showing in the states that do hold them has been anything but overwhelming — and certainly cannot be said to constitute a mandate for his nomination. His most impressive popular showings came in Wisconsin and Massachusetts. He won narrowly in California. He beat Gene McCarthy in Illinois. In New York he was virtually unopposed. He was drubbed in Florida and Michigan. Often the total voter turnout was surprisingly low, as in Rhode Island, where he won against no opposition, with 10 per cent of the eligible voters turning out.

The real strength of the McGovern campaign has been the showing of his organization in states choosing their delegates by methods other than the direct popular vote.

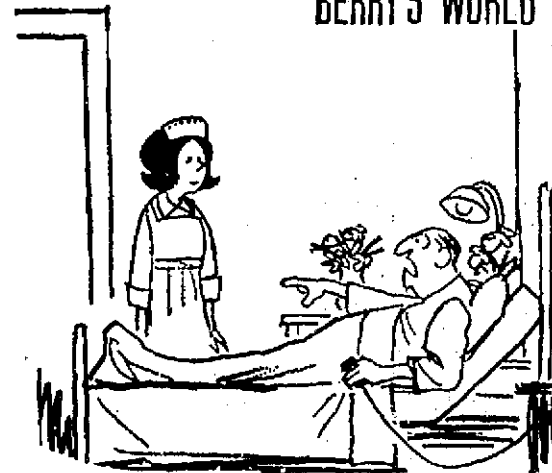

In these states McGovern enthusiasts succeeded in taking over the delegate selection process at the precinct level.

Characteristically, this has been anything but a broad-based, popular movement. Rather, it has been the triumph of an energetic, ideologically committed minority. The ordinary Democratic voter does not involve himself in the precinct meetings, caucuses and state conventions that characterize this process. He usually doesn't have the time to do so; and politics does not play a large enough role in his motivation to get him out to those late night meetings or those long trips at the state level. Nor does he fully comprehend the rules of the game. But the McGovern ideologues did. And McGovern has thus been able to capture blocs of delegates in such unlikely places as Texas, Vermont, Idaho, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, and even, Lord help us, Louisiana.

But these delegates do not reflect anything like massive popular support for McGovern among Democratic voters. Richard Stearns, the McGovern operative who had command of the campaign in non-primary states, told a reporter that one of the important factors working here for McGovern was "that we were not covered" by the press or by television — and so the delegate-gathering operation could go forward unknown to the mass of voters, who might otherwise have taken alarm.

The effect of the McGovern reforms, therefore, was not to open up the nominating process in the Democratic Party to a wide range of voters. Rather, the reforms provided an opportunity for a new elite to displace the older elite that formerly controlled the party. The McGovern strength lies in the affluent suburb, on the campus, and among certain media and professional groups. As long as the traditional Democratic operatives controlled the nominating process, these groups, as in 1968, were consigned to the McCarthyite wilderness. The McGovern reforms opened the door and allowed them to take control.

School Fund Drive Passes Minimum Goal

Catholic School Fund Hits $643,000

With pledges of $643,000 in hand, leaders of the drive to give financial stability to the Lake Michigan Catholic school system are now cycling the additional funds needed to put the system on a permanent basis.

The chairman of the LMC Development Fund Drive, Martin Edinborough, reported today that the minimum goal of $500,000 has been surpassed by about $143,000. Edinborough, and his co-chairman, Ted Vernasco, stated that the $500,000 goal was necessary to keep the local Catholic schools in operation for the immediate future. They emphasized the need for additional funds well beyond the $500,000 figure as the money which would establish the income-producing endowment fund that would virtually guarantee a permanent school system.

Edinborough noted that the Catholics of the area alone surpassed the $500,000 mark.

St. Bernard's Parish Chairman Jim McQuillen and Jack Kinney reported pledges of $78,000; St. John's Parish Chairman Tony Angelo and Ed Broderick reported $152,000; and St. Joseph Parish Chairman Gerald Sarno and Gaston Lemieux reported $130,000. The parish chairmen note that some families are still expected to submit pledges, although the official parish campaigns ended Friday. Over $180,000 has been pledged by Catholics in the major gifts category, which is not figured in the parish totals.

The Major Gifts committee results to date total $255,000 in pledges, while the Business-Industry committee, which recently got underway under Earl Steimle and Hank Gleiss, has obtained pledges totaling $20,000. The Major Gifts and Business-Industry committees are continuing their campaign activities through July.

In reflecting upon the meaning of private education to the Twin Cities area, Dr. Ben Phillips, president of the Twin Cities Area Catholic School Fund, Inc., said that the drive has resulted in indications from area families that about 200 new students are interested in attending the LMC schools. This and an earlier request from a South Haven group, could eventually boost enrollments to over the 1150 mark, up from the 950 last year.

Dr. Phillips noted that the LMC School system spends about $600 per student which is 30 percent to 35 percent less per student than area public school systems. He said continued financial efficiency, coupled with the high standards of Christian principles and quality education, are the Catholic school system's long range objectives.

BACHELORS 14 CLUBHOUSE: This artist's drawing shows the Bachelors 14 clubhouse expected to be started this summer at Euclid avenue and I-94 business loop in Benton township. The Bachelors 14 club of Benton Harbor is currently aiming for 250 memberships to help finance the proposed $100,000 clubhouse and adjoining parking lot. The building was designed by Pearson Engineering.

Construction To Start This Summer

'Bachelors' Plan Clubhouse

The Bachelors 14 club of Benton Harbor hopes to break ground July 30 for a $100,000 clubhouse and parking lot.

The clubhouse will be located at the I-94 business loop and Euclid avenue in Benton township on a seven-acre plot. The Bachelors 14 club was organized by leading members of the black community. In the past they have sponsored boy scouts, a queen contest, and established college scholarships to Lake Michigan College.

The construction this summer will be only the first phase of the total project, according to Pete Mitchell, vice-president of Bachelors 14. Next summer a swimming pool and tennis courts are expected to be added, he said. Later the club may build a nine-hole golf course. Financing of the project will be handled by the Farmers and Merchants Bank, Mitchell said.

The initial part of the cost will be met through the sale of 250 memberships, he added. The 3,800 square foot building will be contracted by Pearson Construction Co. and sub-contracted to minority contractors in the area. Mitchell said, "This is a dream come true. We've worked long and hard for this. It will be a place where the total community can meet and socialize."

Club memberships are not restricted to blacks, Mitchell said. "In fact, many whites have already bought memberships," he said.

Mitchell emphasized that the Bachelors 14 members wanted to thank the Farmers and Merchants Bank for backing the project.

BH School Board Okays Pay Hikes

Administrators Slated For 11% Increases

Depending upon the style of mathematics employed, Benton Harbor Area Schools principals and other administrators below the level of assistant superintendent will get two 5.5 per cent, or one 11 per cent, pay increases next year.

The board of education Thursday night adopted a pay hike schedule for 39 administrators in the system. Individual raises varied from $1,040 to $3,320 over last year.

Robert Payne, assistant superintendent for personnel, described the increase as 5.5 per cent raises for the last two years. He emphasized that the administrators, like the teachers, did not get a base pay increase last year.

The administrators all did, however, get a longevity pay increase last year, under a pay grid for administrators adopted in 1969. That grid provides an automatic increase for each year for five years.

Payne said the federal wage-price office in Detroit approved the administrators' pay hike as 5.5 per cent increases for two years.

The 1972-73 salary of each of the administrators and the 1971-72 salary is shown in the following table adopted by the board:

Parish-McCORMACK

Radio Debate Plans Nearly Completed

Groundwork for a radio debate between Tat Parish and David McCormack, the two Democratic candidates for state representative in the 4th district, has been completed, according to a joint announcement by representative of the two candidates.

While most of the major issues connected with staging the debate have been resolved, the two sides agreed to meet again on July 3 to iron out final points and begin working on technical details.

The debate will cover campaign issues.

PETER E. BOLLINE
PROMOTED

Bolline Promoted By F&M

Peter E. Bolline has been promoted to assistant vice-president in the commercial loan department of the Farmers and Merchants National Bank in Benton Harbor, according to bank president Richard E. Willard.

Bolline joined the F&M bank on March 1, 1972. He formerly was associated with the Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit where he was a senior commercial credit analyst. A graduate of St. Joseph Catholic high school, Bolline received a bachelor of arts degree in business from Michigan State University, majoring in marketing and accounting.

Bolline, 24, is the son of Doctor and Mrs. Emil Bolline of St. Joseph.

Thomas Herndon To Be Honored At Dedication

Dedication of the flagpole at the John E. N. Howard Bandshell in memory of Sgt. Thomas H. Herndon is scheduled for Sunday evening.

The 7:30 p.m. concert will provide the musical backdrop for the ceremonies honoring Sgt. Herndon who was killed in action in Vietnam. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hayden C. Herndon.

The dedication Sunday is part of four appearances by The St. Joseph Municipal band Sunday and Tuesday, Independence day.

Also sharing the bandshell spotlight will be Ruth Hill and her "Stars in Miniature," a marionette show which is a new feature for the bandshell list of programs.

SGT. THOMAS HERNDON

Director John E. N. Howard issued an invitation to residents to make the 2:30 or 7:30 p.m. concerts a regular stop when they have out-of-town guests. The bandshell is located on Port street near Lake boulevard, overlooking the St. Joseph river and harbor.

This is the 34th consecutive year for municipal sponsorship of the band and the 25th for Director Howard. Concerts are an hour long and numbers cover a wide range of musical styles. Many of the numbers are played in response to requests by concert goers.

Numbers to be played at the dedication of the flagpole at the two Sunday concerts include "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," an English folk song suite by Ralph Vaughan Williams and "Do Re Mi" by Richard Rodgers.

Three selections by the band for the dedication ceremony will be "Fanfare for the Common Man," by Aaron Copland; "Spiritual" from Don Gillis's symphony No. 5 1/2 and "March of the Magnificents" by John Cacavas.

The Fourth of July holiday program will include Miss Hill's act that Howard has been advised "has enchanted discriminating audiences in theaters, clubs, fairs and television.

"Her artistry is in the manipulation of marionettes, combined with a fast-paced marches by Richard Rodgers, "Magic Trumpet" made famous by Herb Alpert, "Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" and "Blue Tango" by Leroy Anderson.

Something New Added In Van Buren

FIRST CAMPERS: Park employee Marilyn Koning presents Mr. and Mrs. William Wagener of Kalamazoo with the first camp site permit issued at yesterday's opening of the new 205-site campground at Van Buren state park, just south of South Haven. The Wageners camped for 24 hours outside the park entrance in order to be first in line. Behind them, other campers line up to wait their turn. Park officials speculated that the

PARK MAP: Park Manager Lawrence Kern displays a map of the new 205-site campground that opened yesterday at Van Buren state park, just south of South Haven. According to Kern, the new camp sites are complete, but minus picnic tables. Each site at the park has an electrical outlet and is within at least 150 feet of a water faucet, Kern said. The campground is equipped with two new toilet and shower buildings. Other facilities at the park include picnic grounds, a concession building, a bathhouse, and three-fourths mile of Lake Michigan beach. (Tom Renner photo)

Deputy's Fine Suspended By Judge

'Small Minority' Of Department Assailed For 'Intimidation'

By STEVE McQUOWN
Paw Paw Bureau
PAW PAW — Seventh District Court Judge Luther I. Daines yesterday assessed, then suspended, a $50 fine against a Van Buren sheriff's deputy he had charged with contempt of court.

In the process, the judge assailed certain unidentified members of the department for "acts of intimidation bordering on threat of physical harm to a judge" and for a "festering attitude" of contempt for the court. He termed the members a "small minority" of the department.

The judge's statements came after he had imposed sentence on Deputy John Gaborik, 23. The deputy was cited on the charge after he brought two men into court clad only in trousers. The men had been arrested on a charge of indecent exposure.

Gaborik and Sheriff Richard Stump, both of whom were present for the hearing, said they have not yet decided whether to appeal the sentence.

Gaborik's attorney, Sheldon Rupert, said he had no comment to make on the proceedings.

Rupert, during the hearing, opposed as "an injustice" the imposition of sentence without a show-cause hearing which the judge had at one time considered offering.

In his statement, Judge Daines said:

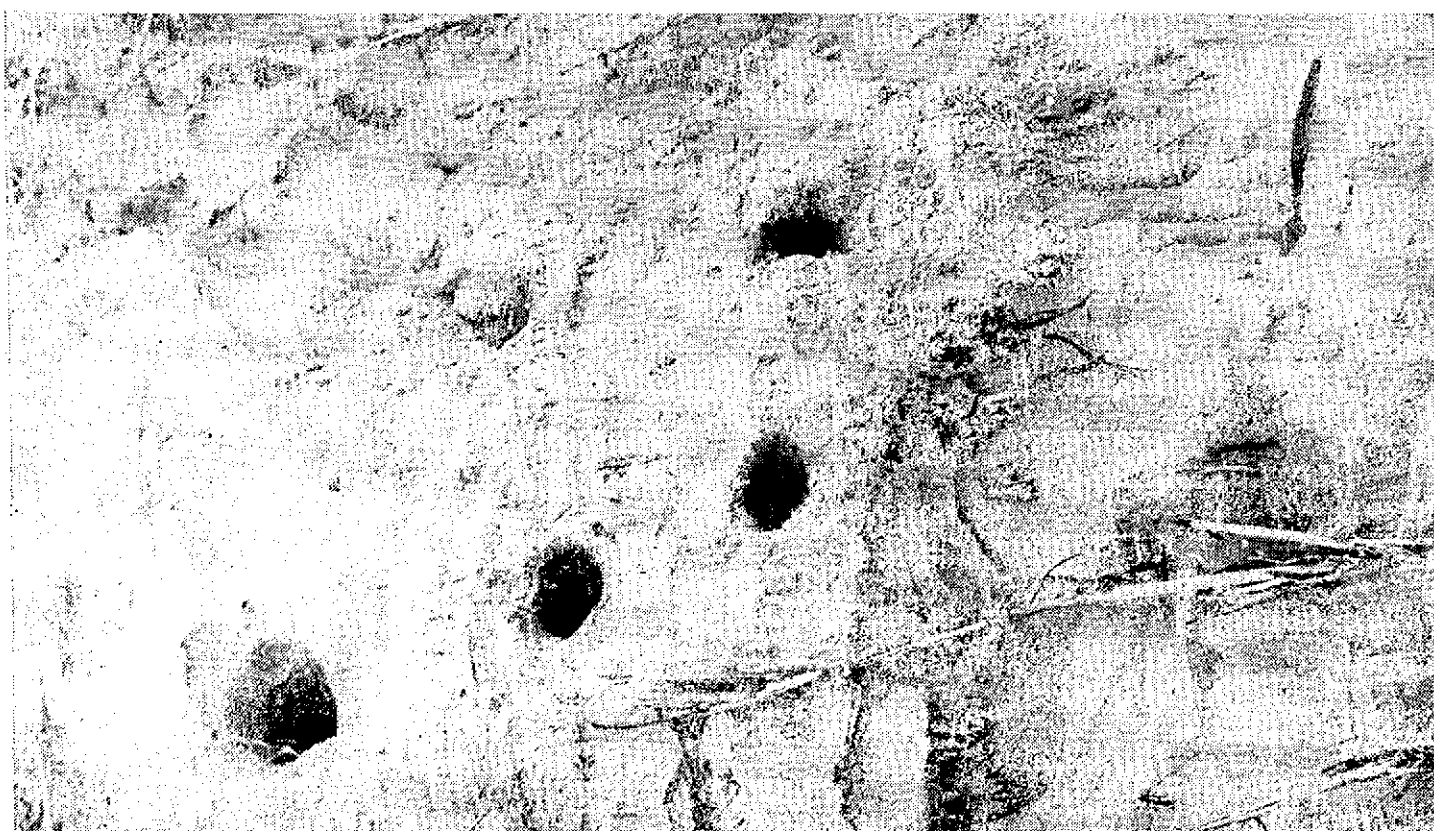

"These proceedings present anything but a happy situation for this court... They are fraught with the danger of continual controversy and perhaps may tend to fan the flames generated by the sheriff of this county who has publicly characterized them (the contempt proceedings) as 'vindictive and out of order.'"

The contempt proceeding came, the judge said, from a "festering attitude" of contempt and do disrespect for the courts of the county on the part of a "small minority" of the sheriff's department.

Partially involved, the judge said, is a basic disregard for the dignity and the rights of man.

Had it been an isolated incident, it might have been handled differently, the judge said.

But, he said, a "series of expressions and deeds emanating from the sheriff's department made it impossible to consider any conciliatory attitude by the court." He added: "Acts of im-

Plaza Display Will Highlight Celebrations

A number of fireworks displays will be staged in various southwestern Michigan cities this coming week in celebration of the Fourth of July.

Fairplain plaza merchants will again sponsor a huge fireworks display at the plaza Monday evening, July 3. The event which annually attracts a large number of Twin City residents is slated to begin at dusk.

The "Barbershoppers" quartet from Niles will also entertain before the Plaza fireworks display starting at 7 p.m.

Other fireworks displays have been announced for the following cities: Berrien Springs, Watervliet, Dowagiac, Galien and Bloomingdale, all on the Fourth of July, and Three Oaks, on Monday. All fireworks activities are slated to start at dusk.

limitation bordering on threat of physical harm to a judge of this court whether made in the confines of your department or forwarded by mail from an anonymous source with such knowledge or acquiescence on the part of the sheriff of this county as to clearly establish his complicity, must cease."

He continued that while the proceedings, with their potential for controversy, might have a discrediting effect upon all, to continue to ignore the problems would be to let the system crumble, with the public the losers.

The judge would not comment on his reference to what he called "intimidation bordering on threats of physical harm."

But it is known, and confirmed by private sources Friday, that more than a year ago the judge received in the mail a newspaper clipping showing photos of a California judge being held captive by prisoners. The California judge was later killed in a shoot out between prisoners and police.

Across the clipping were typed the words: "It could happen in Paw Paw."

The clipping was traced to the sheriff's department and Sheriff Richard Stump later apologized to the judge for what the sheriff said was the accidental mailing of the clipping to the district court. The proceedings and the judge's statement brought heated protest from Gaborik's attorney, Rupert.

He called the statement "extraneous," and said he vigorously opposed its insertion into the record.

Rupert said it is obvious that Gaborik was "becoming the scapegoat" for problems that may or may not exist.

He described as a "gross injustice" the imposition of a sentence without an impartial judge and without a show-cause hearing.

He said that those accused of criminal acts are given more rights than Gaborik.

"This is not justice as I understand it," Rupert said.

Michigan Budget Barely Balanced

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—The Michigan Legislature has scattered for two months of vacation and re-election campaigning after writing a barely balanced budget—on schedule for the first time in several years.

As the furor of the last hectic round of action died in both houses Friday night the state entered a new fiscal year with a $2.32 billion budget awaiting Gov. William Milliken's signature.

It represents a 13.1 per cent, $271.7 million advance in the relentless inflationary trend of government cost. The new budget outdistanced Milliken's proposals by $48.3 million.

An untied, eleven-hour lottery measure is a key lynchpin in the final adjustment of accounts to show a deficit-free ledger. The lottery, passed earlier in the day, is counted on to provide $20 million in a revenue lift that still winds up $4.9 million less than authorized expenditures.

The discrepancy officially is to be rectified by carrying over a current, year-end surplus of $9.7 million. That is projected to help leave a smaller cushion next June 30 of $4.7 million. Milliken in January reasoned it could have been $11.7 million had the legislature followed his guidelines.

The full pricetag on the legislature's spending decisions was placed at $2,317,297,439; incoming revenues were estimated at $2,312,375,000. Lumped with so-called "restricted" funds, federal subsidies and self-sustaining programs, the cost eventually will exceed $5.6 billion for the year.

Major items include:

—A total state elementary and secondary school aid grant of $1.128 billion. More than half of it is to be paid from the general fund budget finally approved Friday. Much of the money carries stipulations that none of it may go for schools or districts involved in cross-district busing through court-ordered desegregation.

—A $44.7 million state welfare appropriation, $122.6 million more than paid out in the recently ended year. Like the school aid subsidy, the welfare allocation is balanced by nearly equal federal contributions that push the total program to well over $1.2 billion.

A legal confrontation may be imminent because of controversial amendments seeking to exert state control over soaring welfare costs through curbs on recipient eligibility. In the past, federal standards for matching funds have been the explanation for soaring costs.

The state now is to shut off its contributions if Washington will not let Michigan run the program. The bill also puts a lid of $283 million on aid to families with dependent children (ADC), regardless of case-load increases.

—$345.6 million to operate the state's 13 major public colleges and universities.

—$237.7 million in unrestricted revenue to be returned to cities, townships and counties. The bulk of the money comes from sales, income and intangibles taxes, but it buttressed by $11 million that the state chips in from the general fund.

Final adoption of the finished budget came in a fast-paced session with many lawmakers complaining openly of hasty procedures that disregarded attempts to scrutinize detail. The final budget bill for the legislature, the governor and major departments was passed after a special resolution sailed through both houses declaring copies of the agreed-upon spending need not be printed for legislators. Less than a dozen lawmakers had any notion of the cost of the item. Most of the rest long had given up both-ering to ask.

Besides the budget, the legislature established a state lottery, to be headed by a single commissioner appointed by the governor; wrote a new, tough air pollution control law; put a veterans bonus bond issue on the November general election ballot; and approved a measure making the receiver of stolen property liable for stiff penalties.

The House voted to legalize bingo and sent that bill to the Senate, where dog racing won approval on Thursday. Both items are left for the fall session, along with no-fault insurance, banning studded snow tires, hiking the state gasoline tax two cents for roadbuilding and urban transportation, and a proposed increase in state housing authority bonding.

The new air pollution law and another controversial bill allowing the Natural Resources Department to set aside as much as 400 million acres of state land as protected wilderness were the major last-minute conservation bills to pass.

TRAFFIC REPORTS: Hourly reports on traffic conditions all across Michigan are being made available to the some 3.3 million motorists expected on the state's highways over the holiday period from 6 p.m. Friday through midnight Tuesday. One of the airborne teams that will survey the highways and report through WHFB and 129 other radio stations in the state stopped at Ross field in the Twin cities Friday. The

We believe that such information should remain in the patient's folder and be released only upon his signature or a subpoena. Releasing such data is contrary to the standards of dignity and privacy as held by our profession. It is also discriminatory against the poor who have not the option of private vs. clinic care.

The psychiatrists in one community have voted unanimously to refuse to cooperate in this manner. They will not admit any psychiatrist to the psychiatric staff who is willing to follow the procedure as currently outlined. This raises the added issue of jeopardizing the delivery of mental health services in the State of Michigan.

We would recommend the following:

1. That form No. 1810 as presently written be withdrawn.
2. That it be revised deleting anything that will identify a particular patient with the data included.
3. Prior to releasing this information, all patients should be aware of the move and have an option to allow same, if the form remains unchanged. A new therapeutic case contract should be agreed upon between the therapist and the patient which would include knowledge of such a release of privileged data.

SAYS CONCERT WAS SUPERB

Editor,

The "Bon Voyage" concert presented by the St. Joseph high school bands was superb. Since no musical organization is any better than its director, an appreciative round of applause for Robert W. Brown is in order.

NOT ALL AGREE WITH TREATY

Editor,

In speaking of the arms limitation treaty with Russia, President Nixon on June 1 said that: "With this step we have enhanced the security of both nations." There are those who disagree.

Donald Brennan of the Hudson Institute says of treaty: "It enshrines a Soviet superiority that can be expanded." National Observer quotes Princeton Prof. Wagner: "I'm afraid we gave away much more than we received." U.S. News reported on 25 agreements reached at seven summit meetings.

"The Soviets have violated 24 of those 25 agreements." Example — Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty in 1968 when Russia promised to work toward disarmament. Instead, "Russia accelerated its missile construction."

Sen. Jackson warned that the Soviets have, under this new treaty, "the authority to retain or deploy a number of weapons based on land and at sea that exceeds our own in every category, and by a 50 per cent margin." Sen. Eastland noted in document, "Communist Global Subversion and American Security," released on June 11, 1972 by the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee. "The record unfortunately offers little hope that the Communists will respond to new agreements — or new concessions — by calling off their campaign of global subversion."

Tradition Is Struck Down At Academies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Court of Appeals has ruled that compulsory chapel attendance at the three service academies is unconstitutional, thus ending a long-standing military tradition.

The 2-1 decision Friday, reversing a lower-court ruling, held that the compulsory attendance violated the First Amendment prohibition against establishment of religion.

The Defense Department may appeal the decision to the Supreme Court. But unless a stay is granted, the decision ends the chapel requirement at the Military Academy at West Point, the Naval Academy at Annapolis and the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs.
